

Right-Wing Populist Parties and Border Issues. Toward a Global Perspective

Lecture by Dr. Oscar Mazzoleni

November 12

2:30-3:30 PM

TUR 3310

The lecture will focus on the border issues in right-wing populist strategies. Although this linkage is rarely considered by scholarship, one might argue the construction of new borders, bridging anti-immigration stances and sovereignty claim, is part of a global trend. In order to highlight this argument, some Western and Central European as well as recent U.S. experiences will be addressed.

Oscar Mazzoleni is a professor of political science at the University of Lausanne, Switzerland, and currently Visiting Scholar at Columbia University, NYC.
